7. Match each word root to its meaning. Write the letter on the line.

_____ histor	A. citizen
_____ oikonomia	B. earth
_____ civis	C. one who knows
_____ geo	D. household management

Part B: Source Task

Read the information about each source. Then answer the questions.

Source 1: A photograph of a one-room schoolhouse taken in 1903. You can see wooden desks, a chalkboard, and students of different ages sitting together.

Source 2: A website called "SchoolHistory4U.net" with no author listed. It says, "Old schools were really boring and kids hated going." No dates or evidence are included.

8. Source 1 is a primary source because it was:

- A. Written by an expert after the event
- B. Created during the time it shows
- C. Found on a website
- D. A secondary source that looks old

9. Using the Three-Check Test, Source 2 is unreliable because:

- A. It is about schools
- B. It has no author, no evidence, and shares opinions as facts
- C. It is on the internet
- D. It was written too recently

10. Look at Source 1. Write one observation (what you notice) and one sentence about what it might mean.

Part C: Constructed Response

Answer in complete sentences. Use details from what you learned.

11. What is the difference between a primary source and a secondary source? Give one example of each.

12. A new artifact arrives at the museum. Name two of the five question types a historian-citizen would ask. Explain how each would help.

Part D: Virtue Reflection

Think about the virtues from this unit: honesty, service, and responsibility.

13. Pick one virtue. Explain how a museum curator uses that virtue when studying a source or writing an exhibit label. Use a specific example.
